THE ART OF OPTIMISM

34 PEOPLE CHANGING HOW WE SEE OUR WORLD

Original portrait by South African painter Nelson Makamo, 36
The Brief

The drug war after El Chapo

The Virginia governor and the new bar for political scandal

The first U.S. statehouse with a female majority

TIME with ... TV chef—turned—cancer crusader

The New England Patriots extend their reign

The View

Ideas, opinion, innovations

Nancy Gibbs on the 2020 campaign and our waning attention span

Ian Bremmer on the danger of the U.S. leaving a Cold War arms treaty

Where Black History Month tributes fall short

Ralph Nader on Howard Schultz and third-party candidates

Small countries make big pledges to slow climate change

Features

Walled Off
Down in the polls and facing an empowered opposition, President Donald Trump is at a defining moment by Brian Bennett

Venezuela's Opening
A young leader offers a way out of the country's catastrophe by Ciara Nugent

China's Time Bomb
The nation's biggest economic crisis may be its aging population by Charlie Campbell

To the Rescue
With doctors scarce in Nigeria, midwives are saving thousands by Aryn Baker

The Optimists
Guest editor Ava DuVernay finds the greatest hope in art, including these 34 visionaries

Time Off

What to watch, read, see and do

Man Booker Prize winner

Marlon James kicks off a fantasy trilogy

Movies: Isn't It Romantic? The Lego Movie 2; Cold Pursuit

Daniel Radcliffe stars in the new TV comedy Miracle Workers

Eat smart: benefits of fiber-rich diets; the unhealthiest fried foods

Questions for author Angie Thomas

Venezuelan opposition leader and head of parliament Juan Guaido is greeted by supporters as he leaves an anti-government rally in Caracas on Feb. 2

Photograph by Adriana Loureiro—Reuters